Now all your correspondence can happen in one place.

Feedback provides a single, familiar interface for all business correspondence among your workforce.

You define any number of feedback categories based on a variety of different form templates, who's in charge of each (including the email address(es) submissions are sent to), and a custom message to be shown after feedback is sent.

As with all the IQ LINK modules, Feedback is available from both your company's intranet and IQ LINK kiosks, with a tailored interface for each (so your entire workforce can make suggestions or raise concerns).

Collect everything from OH&S concerns to office improvement suggestions; even round up ideas for the next office get-together.

Give your workforce a voice with Feedback.

Your staff are likely to be the first to recognise areas for improvement— now you can benefit from their input quickly and easily.

Feedback comes in many forms, positive and negative. The one thing you want to ensure is that everyone knows how to make their thoughts heard.

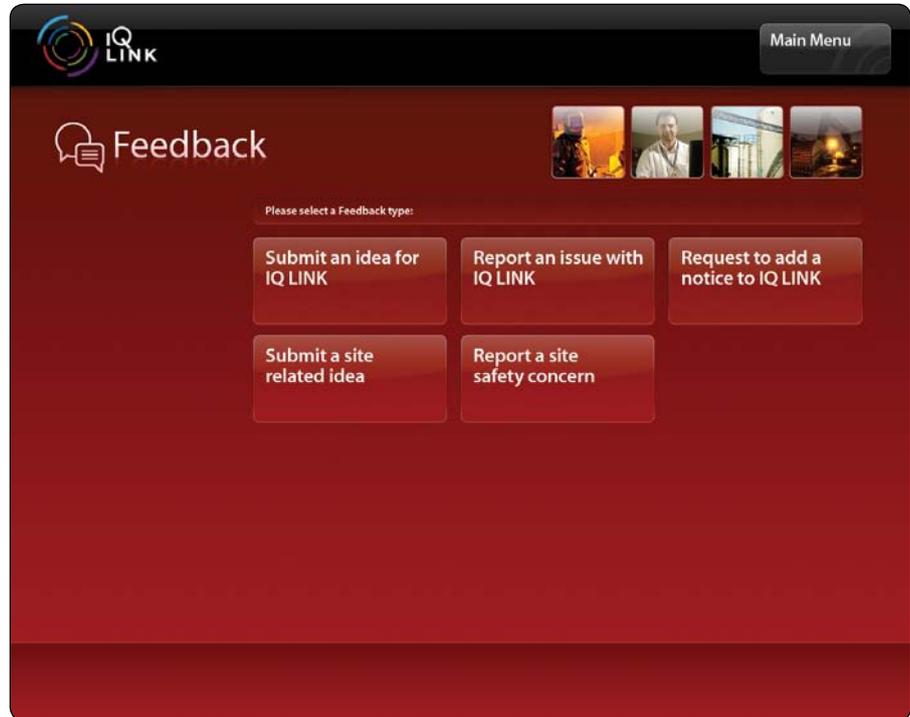

Once you've got IQ LINK in place, your workforce is able to quickly identify it as a single point to retrieve whatever information they're looking for. By including Feedback in IQ LINK, we're ensuring IQ LINK will also come to represent an outlet for new ideas.

The only way to improve your workplace's safety and efficiency is to recognise its weaknesses. Now you'll have a way to stay informed of suggestions and concerns immediately.

Feedback stores all submissions in its database for archival and audit purposes (and to record excellent statistics), but the only thing you'll need to interface with is email, so you're aware immediately of any issue that might affect you or your business.

Feedback is quickly accessible from every other module in IQ LINK (so if your staff notices an issue, they'll know how to report it).

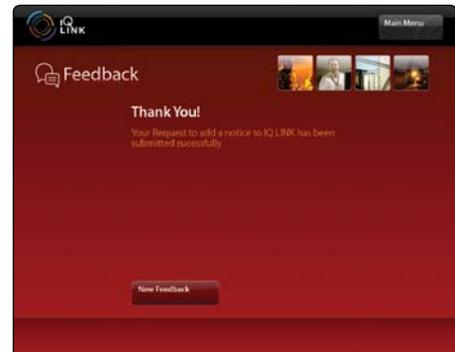

It's like giving your entire workforce email but knowing they'll actually use it for work purposes!
