

Videos

You're already producing video material for training and communication—so why not make it available?

The law states that employers are required to reduce the risk of injury to their employees by providing items such as safety equipment and training. One of the best ways an employer can give work place safety training is to provide safety videos.

Videos securely hosts and streams your videos, so you can make your information more easily available to everyone, whether they use a PC or an IQ LINK kiosk.

By exposing your existing videos, you'll increase your return on investment and make important information accessible to the people who need it.

YOUR SYSTEMS, SIMPLIFIED

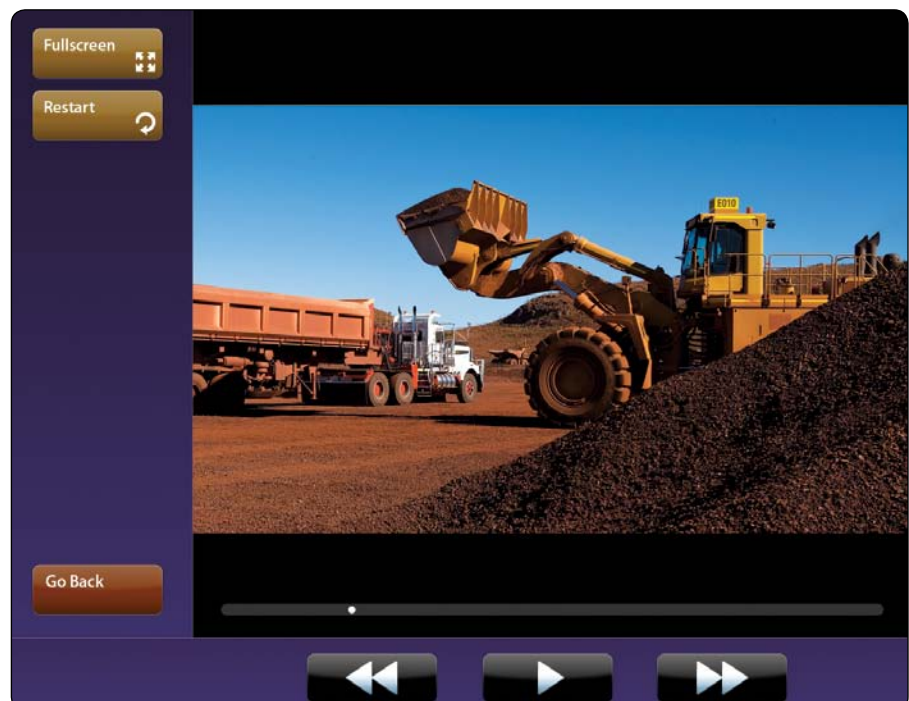

Put your company videos in front of your people.

Videos is the simple solution for distributing engaging, visual information to your team.

You're already producing videos for everything from eLearning and training material to site inductions and toolbox talks. Get the most out of your investment by making the information available to everyone, whether they're using a PC or an IQ LINK kiosk.
